From the playwright/co-producer:

It's been a long and winding past few years to get All's Fair (Six Western) ready for an audience. After being passed through many pairs of hands and hours of labor, the play has arrived in the able care of Oracle Theatre Inc.; the company has spearheaded a multi-year development process for the play, starting with a two-week summer workshop this July in the Black Box at Cap21 in Manhattan.

Some of you have been with this project since its inception; it is my hope that you'll want to stay connected to this production as it comes to life, and help us get butts in seats -- not to mention joining us yourself when the lights rise!

Keep on keeping on,

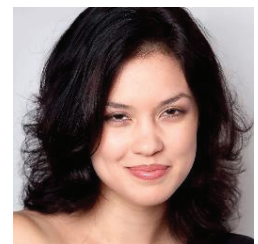

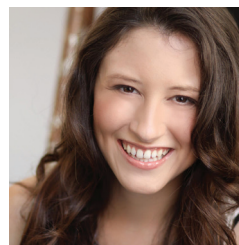

Sergei Burbank
